Two Paulding County Schools Earn Greatest Gains Award

(Dallas, GA) – Two Paulding County schools have received awards from the Governor’s Office on Student Achievement. The awards are part of Georgia’s Single Statewide Accountability System.

Austin Middle and Moses Middle School have been named Greatest Gains schools. This means they earned a three-year average CCRPI Progress Score that ranks in at least the 93rd percentile.

Moses Middle School earned “Silver” status. This means the school has had a CCRPI Progress Score ranked in the 95th percentile for the past three years.

Austin Middle School earned “Bronze” status. This means the school has had a CCRPI Progress Score ranked in the 93rd percentile for the past three years.

The 2017 Greatest Gains award winners consist of 139 schools across 50 districts in the state of Georgia.
