“Coming off of a school year that was dominated by the pandemic, it is great to see our high schools continuing to excel in an area as critical as Advanced Placement,” said Superintendent Steve Barnette. “Because it is a direct indicator of student success at the post-secondary level, we want to see as many students as possible taking AP courses and doing well on AP exams. Preparing students for success today and tomorrow is our vision, and AP courses are a great way to do that. It is a real honor for three of our schools to be recognized by the state in multiple AP categories.”
